the long neck, which, nevertheless, consists of only the normal seven vertebrae, and by the " horns " which differ from those of all other jRuminants; they are small bony prominences of the frontal

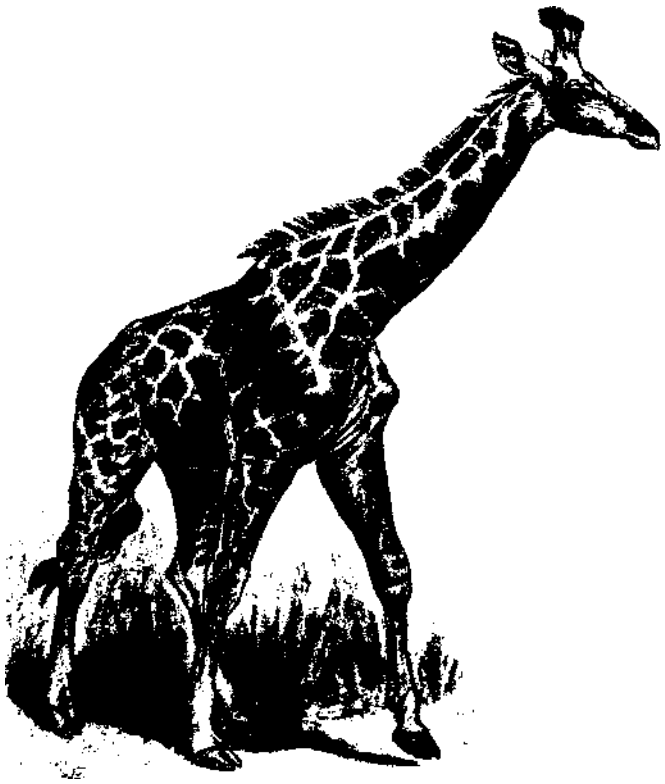

FIG. 159.—Oiraffe.
Gfiraffa camelopardaHa.
x^0.

xrnes, which become fused with the skull, and which are covered nth unmodified skin. They are not shed. Between them is a ttediaa prominence. This cranial armature is present in the ornate » well as in t&e male, and is well developed even in the